THE DIAMOND BUTTON.

the house in which Annie was confined.

Hurrying back, the five were conveyed by the boy to the attic.

The youngest showed them how he mounted to the roof, and in a moment they were on it.

The passage over the roof was perilous, for it was an old fashioned high roof, sloping at a precipitous angle from a peak in the middle, both ways.

The boy, who ran over the roof like a cat, and with the agility and confidence of one familiar with the feat, showed them the skylight.

Tom put his mouth to the broken pane and made a sound.

"Hist! hist!" He heard a movement beneath.

"Hist! Miss Templeton?" "Who's that?" was the answer in a female voice.

"Be quiet; help is near," he said. A cry of joy heard from below.

"Are you alone?" asked Tom. "Yes, quite alone."

"Stand fast, then; you'll be quickly freed."

He pulled at the frame of the skylight. It was fast.

Two of the men drew "jimmies" from their pockets, fitted them together, and inserted them under one side.

"Crick crack!" in a twinkling it was pried off. "Eh, eh, oh, golly!" laughed the boy.

The moment the skylight flew off, a light flashed up from below.

Annie had lit a candle. Holbrook attempted to descend.

"Wait," she cried. "The distance is too great to jump."

They heard a noise of something being dragged.

"Now you can jump," she said. Holbrook let himself drop, and he fell on the bed Annie had dragged under the skylight.

He caught the girl, who was trembling with excitement, in his arms and covered her face with kisses.

He murmured and moaned over her; he laughed and cried and embraced her again and again.

In the meantime the others were tumbling down one after the other.

It was not until long after, when Tom was in his bed the next morning, that he realized that no one, not even Annie, had been hurt.

He had been in a daze, and he had not noticed the girl who had been under the skylight.

"Yes, that's what he did," replied the chief's assistant.

"What imprudence! I didn't want him to do that. He might have been seen by the parties who abducted her."

"I don't think they were. He ran her up to the next corner and caught the cab there, and was off in a jiffy. They attracted attention from nobody; I was behind them all the way."

"All right; if the alarm has been given it can't be helped now. I say, chief, station two men at each door opening from the outside."

Let each man take his shooter, and one have a bull's eye ready for use. You and I will take our places at the middle door, one in each room.

Shadow, you run down into the street and slip up into the hall outside there, so as to give us plenty of warning, if any one comes upstairs."

"I can't; the stairs are enclosed and the door locked," replied the Shadow.

"I had forgotten that," said Tom. "Pick it, can't you?" said the chief.

"Here's a set of 'skeletons.' The Shadow took them and disappeared.

"Now," said Tom, "to place the table and chairs where they were."

When this was done, he added: "Now, to your places, and out with the light."

They were in total darkness; what light there was came from the dormer windows and the broken skylight.

They waited some time in silence, relieved only by the breathing of the men. Presently they heard a light tread on the outside of the door; then a scratching sound.

"Is it you, Shadow?" asked Tom. "Yes."

"All right. Conceal yourself and don't let the man see you when he comes."

"I'll make sure of that." Then there was a longer wait and a longer silence.

This was broken by the quick patter of bare feet on the roof, and a voice: "He's a-comin' up de street now. Give it to 'im good."

It was the limp, who had constituted himself a skirmisher on the outside, at the skylight.

Tom could not restrain a laugh. All public service is performed through selfish consideration, he thought.

In a moment more a scratching was heard on the door.

"What is that?" asked Tom. "The door is being opened."

Tom's heart was beating fast. He was in a daze, and he had not noticed the girl who had been under the skylight.

Call for a Republican Convention.

YUMA, A. T. July 19th, 1890.

Pursuant to a call by the Chairman a meeting of the Republican County Convention, was held in Yuma on Saturday, July 19th, at 3 p. m.

Present J. H. Taggart, Chairman, O. F. Townsend, C. V. Meeden, C. Baker, F. B. Wightman, Secretary.

The following resolutions were presented and unanimously adopted.

That a Republican County Convention is hereby called to meet at the Court House in Yuma, A. T. on Tuesday August 19th, at 7:30 p. m. for the purpose of electing delegates to the Territorial Republican Convention, to be held at Phoenix on the 26th, of August 1890, the election of a County Committee for the ensuing term, and such other business as may properly come before such Convention.

That a primary election for the purpose of electing ten delegates to such convention from Yuma precinct is hereby called for August 12, 1890, at 5:30 p. m. at the Court House in Yuma A. T.

That it is recommended that delegates to said Convention be elected by the Republican voters of each outside precinct, by Mass Meeting, or primaries, as they may prefer, at any time prior to August 12, 1890.

That proxies will be recognized if issued to any good Republican of the County subject to the decision of the Convention.

That said Convention consist of twenty-seven delegates as follows:

From Yuma, Valley, Toltec, Harqua Hala, Silver District and Norton's, Ehrenberg, Parker, Tacoma, Texas Hill, AZEC.

Total. A full attendance is earnestly requested. J. H. TAGGART, Chairman, F. B. WIGHTMAN, Secretary, Republican Co. Cent. Com.

A Wonderful Book.

Over 200 years have passed by since the publication of the Pilgrim's Progress. In that time the world has made wonderful advances—has forgotten or out-grown hundreds of thousands of books. Yet this same Pilgrim's Progress written in Bedford jail by a common tinker 300 years ago, is to-day read in more languages and by more people of all classes than any other book in the world.

The History Company of San Francisco are the publishers, and their advertisement will be found in another column.
